Price of junction box

Overview

Junction Box Cost Guide: Prices & Installation 2026A junction box can cost anywhere from around $10 for a simple indoor plastic box to several hundred doll.

Key Takeaways

Junction boxes typically cost between $10 and $450 for the box itself, with installation adding $100 to $300 on average, depending on size, material, and location. Retail Price

The cost of a junction box varies widely based on material, size, and environmental rating. Small indoor plastic boxes are the most affordable, ranging from $0.50 to $60, while standard metal boxes typically cost $2 to $63. Larger or weatherproof boxes designed for outdoor use or harsh conditions can range from $70 to $450 . Plastic boxes are lightweight and budget-friendly but less durable, whereas metal boxes offer superior protection, are required for conduit systems, and are more impact- and temperature-resistant .

Installation Costs

Professional installation usually costs $100 to $300, which includes labor and the box itself. Labor rates vary from $50 to $130 per hour, with additional trip fees of $100 to $200 in some areas . Installation costs increase for:

- Outdoor or weatherproof boxes, which require extra sealing and longer installation time
- Hard-to-reach locations, such as attics or under floors

- Multiple boxes, where electricians may offer a lower per-box rate when installed together. Complex projects, such as adding new circuits, ceiling fans, or appliances, can raise total costs up to $1,000 due to additional wiring and weatherproofing requirements.

Factors Affecting Cost

- Material: Plastic is cheaper; metal is stronger and often required for conduit systems.
- Size: Larger boxes (e.g., 12"x12") cost 3-5 times more than small 4"x4" boxes.
- Location: Outdoor boxes cost 40-80% more than indoor boxes due to weatherproofing.
- Project complexity: Adding circuits, appliances, or multiple boxes increases labor and materials.
- Retailer and brand: Prices vary between big-box stores, specialty suppliers, and online vendors.

Summary

For a typical residential project, expect to pay $10-$450 for the junction box and $100-$300 for installation, with higher costs for outdoor, large, or specialized boxes. Choosing the right material and size, and considering professional installation, ensures safety and compliance with electrical codes.
